

Writing Progression In Narrative

Year 1

First he ate all the hot chicken nuggets and meaty spaghetti potatoes. Then he ate all the yummy ham and cooked bacon. Next he drank all the clear water and white milk.

Year 2

One ^{bringing} gloomy dark night the waves were crashing against the rocks. There was a cheerful party going on in the town. They were really happy and they were also singing. The housekeeper was very angry because he could not have a nice party in the town. Suddenly he heard a big bang! He didn't know

What was going on he ran upstairs with tools. He picked up the lantern then tripped and dropped it. He was worried because he heard a boat noise. And then he got ^{lost} help and then the boat turned away.

Year 3

Coins and the Zipatours

Long ago in Crete on the mountain tops there was a huge brown box which contained to the evil monsters called Zipatours and Baby Zipatours. These creatures had huge spikes and blood sucking fangs. If you came across these animals they would rip you to pieces and swallow you with a grin on their face. One day a war started with Crete and Athens until King Minos said "we'll stop the fighting if you give us 50 children each year". For ^{the} next year the Zipatours ^{had} kidnapped children but to except the dead. Even though there was no more fighting Coins the son of King Tall, was dead because 50 children died every year. So Coins was going to go as one of the 50. He was going to kill the Zipatours. King Tall wished him good luck. As they were riding the sled, King Minos greeted them with an evil grin. When lovely Flower met Coins she standing behind King Minos she was told to put Coins in the box with the Zipatours.

Coins told Flower that he was going to kill the Zipatours. Flower gave him a sword to help him. As he went into the box the Baby Zipatour bit Coins's leg. Just then he stabbed his sword into his neck and killed him. After that he managed to kill Zipatours. He climbed out of the box and took the other 49 back home with him.

Writing Progression In Narrative

Year 4

When Beowulf was ⁱⁿ starting to die, BOOM went his ^{gun}. "It might be the monster," thought Beowulf. But standing in his door-way there was his friend (Amelia the great). "Amelia," Beowulf began "Amelia I'm too old and tired but you would be perfect to fight this awful creature." Beowulf finished. Amelia picked up her sword glittering silver in the moon-light and her gold and red shield ^{and} answered "Yes. I will be ^{honoured} ^{seriously} overpowered to fight this ^{horrible} beast." "Bye my Beowulf, my old friend." So soon that Amelia ran out of the door, down to the beach, jumped on her ship and set sail to the island of this monster.

7. The ship suddenly hit the sandy beach, the ~~timeline~~ walked off the ship her sea shell necklace gleaming in the sparkling like diamonds in a jewelry shop.

8. "Right Beowulf told me that the

Year 5

It all started at the end of the pier. Herbie is taking Violet for a tour of E. en-vo-sea. They are at their last stop: The theatre at the end of the pier.

Suddenly, a cold, ^{win} ~~in~~ mist rolls in through the theater's doors. The air is now ice-cold. Violet clutches Herbie's arm. Herbie breathes out through his mouth. A cloud of condensation ~~is~~ escapes. Violet jumps ~~so~~ does Herbie. A slow, hard banging raps ~~at~~ on the theater door. 'Rap, rap, rap' Then, without warning, the door bursts open.

A strong smell of perfume fills the air. A figure appears. A man, 7 ft tall, ^{and} wearing a pale shirt, steps towards Videt. All the pair could do was stare at this strange man. You would too if you met him. The man, still with a pale smile, is wearing 7-inch high heels, a toporpen hat, a majestic cape and a tiny moustache. He looked very suspicious. "Videt, he said, "He must again

Year 6

Many moon cycles ago - during the dreamtime - spirit animals landed, creating the world we have now by roaming free. Mountains rose, oceans filled. Together, they created the colour orb it burned bright. ¹⁷⁻²¹ Together, they created today. Then, Rainbow Serpent became jealous ²²⁻²³ and gave it to only one side of the land. Now, the other side became monochrome, as all colour drained from everything. It was dull and dull became boredom.

Three animals came together: Parrot, Peacock and Giraffe.
"Ever since that Rainbow Serpent came and took all our colours," he gave it to 'em, me a trouble 'n' strife been so bored, she ain't ever sewing 'cause she ain't 'sewin' 'em colours! We need to make a plan," suggested Parrot.
"Yes, but what plan?" chorused the Giraffe and Giraffe.
"Well OBVIOUSLY we need get it back you dummies!" replied Parrot.
Peacock yelled, "Ugh! You foolish animals! We have to steal it! They're not just going to give to us and say 'Here you go.' I'll go first. I used to be very colourful even indeed it'll be hard to notice if I hide it in my bushy tail!"

The next day, Peacock arrived at Raice - the other side of the world. The orb was ^{new} wisdient and gave off monawaues - ~~waves~~ the invisible waves that give off beast that I'm fighting is a Drifter and he lives on a cart on top of a mountain in front of me," stated Amelia. Luckily she is a very good climber so she ran up to the mountain and checked a rock with her hand to make it sure it was sturdy and checked one with her foot that was good too so she started to climb. Higher and higher as she went up and up, she was lucky she wasn't afraid of heights. She just finally pulled herself up and with that she was standing in front of the entrance of a dark and gloomy cave. She had a stick lit it like a torch and in she went.

Writing Progression In Narrative

Half way through she stopped and had a nap but as just as Amelia was going to sit down she heard a creaking noise, she stood up weapons ready. Out from the shadows came a huge, petrifying beast. The Drifter was baring his fangs it looked ready for lunch. "You're never going to defeat me" roared the beast.

Herbie and Violet (looking confused) gasp faintly. Who is this man? He looked theatrical, with a lot of... Suddenly, Vi runs to the opposite side of the theater. What is-? Herbie thought. Herbie decided to chase after Vi. Stangely, the man stayed. Vi keeps on running. Herbie following suit. Jose still waits, Vi and Herbie coming ever closer. "I'm starting to think this isn't gonna work!" Herbie cries out as Jose suddenly grabs him and Vi. Without thinking, Herbie stomps down his foot, stomping on Jose's in the process. Jose yelps out in pain and drops Herbie and Vi. They bolt out the door, Jose soon following behind.

Feet pounding on the boardwalk, hearts pounding in their chests, they run. BANG!? "What was that?!!!!?" Herbie shouts. They look back. OH NO! Or oh yes? Jose tripped on his cape like dress. "This is our chance!" Violet screams. As they duck behind a cart that sells ice-creams. They take a risky peek. Jose is nowhere to be seen.

"AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA!" Violet shrieks out. Jose jumped on her. Not knowing what she was doing. Vi clung to Jose round by his sleeve. Then... She let go. Jose screams and falls back. Off the pier. Into the deep dark depths of the murky sea below. That was the last of Jose. Or WAS IT???

colour. (I made up the word monochrome, it's not an actual thing.) The orb was laying in the middle of an ever-lasting bee. Peacock slid down the path trying not to get caught when finally, she reached the bee. She snatched it swiftly and hid it in her tail. "Ah! Ow! Eek! My feathers!" screeched Peacock. It had burned her tail into multiple sections. Now Peacock has a tail that has split-up.

Giraffe said, "I'll go next, it only burns feathers so I'll put it on my head." The next day, Giraffe arrived at Raicee, the orb glowing like the sun's crystal. He hastily grabbed the orb and put it balanced it on his long head. He started to go back when all of a sudden, lots of animals started to jump for the orb and peck at his legs. He tried to keep it out of reach, but then, like a response to this situation, his neck grew very little, very little became a bit, a bit became big, big became tall. Suddenly it almost immediately, the orb rolled up his head. Now Giraffe has a long neck.

All animals were about to give up hope when little Kookaburra swooped down from his gum tree and muttered, "M-maybe I can help..." "What is a little pathetic bird like you going to do?" laughed Giraffe. "Silly, old Giraffe, don't you know? There's no such thing as a flying animal in Raicee, I can easily fly back with it. Am I the one who's pathetic now?" replied Kookaburra. The next day, Kookaburra arrived at Raicee. He clutched the orb with his beak and took off. Despite how heavy it was, he still kept going and going and going. Finally, he reached the middle of the Earth and placed the orb firmly on the ground.

Writing Progression In Narrative

angrily, "Oh yes I will," declared Amelia looking greater than ever & she will never get along with this." "Oh darling I already have," wrote said the Doctor while holding a tiny red Barnaby.
"Amelia the bull," yelled Barnaby. In a flash Amelia charged towards the Doctor.
That's when the battle began. What an exciting twist!

They all had a terrible fight.
and finally Amelia ^{threw} ~~threw~~ some stuff for the Driller and then she ran and joined Beemwing. When the Driller was done eating Amelia ~~stomped~~ stomped it and it ~~calmed~~ calmed down then the Driller remarked "Hup on my back" so they did they glw down and went back to the sinking village.

When they got back Amelia replied
"Don't hurt him because he's our friend now." So all the villagers through them a party.
They had the party for half an hour and because the Drifter had to go Amelia hugged him and waved him
he flew away in the gloomy sky.

Now these people of Amelia island were same or were they?

Colour spread worldwide like someone spilling a drink. The Earth was now colourful again and everything was bright and beautiful. Peacock was looking at every picture again, she exclaimed, "oh my god... I'm pretty again!"

Purro said, "ooo, I'm lookin' fancy today!"

Giraffe yelled, "I can see anything - ooo what's that?"

HECK YEAH MY COLOUR IS BACK!"

Kookaburra dawdled, "Everything's green. ooo nice!"

Everyone gathered together: Parrot, Peacock, Gutzgag and even formal Owl! "Thy Koobaburra is very intelligent indeed, we must host thy party for thee, Koobaburra," stated formal Owl. "These Koobaburras, these... shall be no need for you, thou to do any preparations for thy party - thou must simply sit back and relax." Later when the party was ready - everyone began to celebrate. Gutzgag tried not to step on anyone while dancing. "Lalala, oops, sorry! Ah, sorry." Peacock showed off all the moves she could do: the portbot; the burp; the salsa and the waltz. Parrot just danced with his wife. "I 'ope you sewin' now, love." Koobaburra sat on a ^{wooden} long, eating bread crumbs. "I hate parties..."