DAILY DESSERT April 1922 11th November 1922 THE TOMB OF TUT  Who found it first? In 1922 Egyptologists thought they found all the pharaohs' tombs. However, Howard Carter even though Tut's death was sudden had still have a tomb. Eventually he actually found the tomb, or did he? "I was delivering water to the stricken hot workers when I stubbed my toe. I uncovered a red sandstone step. I told Carter and I could not believe how excited he was," explained the water boy. Caplan: Tombs and Treasures Egyptologist Howard Carter discovers the tomb of pharaoh King Tutankhamun! After a long and tiring five year search, Carter and his team of researchers found twelve steps leading to the tomb in the Valley of Kings. This search in the extreme heat was guided by Lord Carnarvon, who was the most interested in Egypt. Digging Down Howard and the water boy uncovered 12 steps and Howard called Carnarvon immediately. Five weeks later he arrived. Then at night, Howard and Carnarvon managed to get inside.	Editor Extraordinaire Talks on Teams Cliftonville Times Friday January 14th 2022 Issue 7 Reporter: EILEEN SKILLEN On Friday 14th January 2022 Cliftonville Primary were lucky enough to interview Anne Suslak, a newspaper editor for their English work. The day started normally for Year 5. Mrs Woodall was interviewing Anne Suslak as their teacher. Mrs Woodall took the register. The English lesson started and the class teacher explained the event briefly. While the children started to get excited Mrs Woodall logged onto Microsoft Teams. Anne Suslak appeared on the screen and the children thought of questions to ask her. Around 10:40 Anne introduced herself.  Anne Suslak answering questions and the children all replied with a joint "Hello". The children asked all sorts of questions and were amazed by every answer. One child from the opposite class (SP) stated, "I really enjoy going to the front and asking a question."

They had to get past lots of rubble and they then saw a second door. Howard used an iron bar to check if the path was clear. Nothing.

What they saw.

Howard lit a candle and they knew they were running out of oxygen because the flame was flickering.

"You should have seen what was in there a description would be enough. So to reply to Cameron asking me what was in there I said 'spazzing things', continued Carter. Every thing was either made from gold or coated in gold. There was a massive shiny party of a choir, some and more. There are over 3,000 treasures found in the tomb of Tut.

The curse of the Mummy.

5. Shortly after Tut's tomb was opened, Cameron died and at the same moment all the lights in Cairo suddenly and mysteriously went out. Also soon after both Howard and Cameron's pets died at the same day. Some people believe a deadly germ was released but Egyptians used magic to cure injuries.

Conclusion

Howard was very excited and Cameron believed in him. However in 2016 X-rays found more secret rooms in Tut's tomb! ✓

Anne Sudak (age 30) News paper editor commented "The strangest thing I had to do was present an award to a rabbit called Boris!"

Ms Woodall, class teacher replied "I was really impressed with the questions the children asked and I hope we can meet Anne Sudak in 20 years one day."

After this event lots of children felt inspired. Several children might even become editors when they grow up. Anne Sudak is an inspirational young editor and the children have even decided to write their own newspaper!
